DECISION RECORD

Client Details

FOI Request FA14/02/00587
File Number ADF2014/5233

Scope:

“A log of incidents across all Immigration Detention centres in the following category of incidents with the date range 3 September 2013 to the present

Use of Observation Rm > 24 hrs

I request that the log appear with the same data columns as the earlier "summaries of incidents" document on the DIAC disclosure log.”

Documents in scope

1. Incident log – (6pg)

Information considered

I am an officer authorised under section 23 of the FOI Act to make decisions in respect of requests to access documents or to amend or annotate departmental records. In reaching my decision, I have considered the following:

- The Freedom of Information Act 1982;
- Departmental files and/or documents (identified above);
- The Australian Information Commissioner’s guidelines relating to access to documents held by government; and
- The department’s FOI handbook

Reasons for decision

I have considered the files within the scope of your request and applied exemptions in part or in full to documents as detailed in the Schedule of Documents. You should read the schedule in conjunction with the exemptions below.

s47F(1) - Public interest conditional exemptions—personal privacy

A document is conditionally exempt if its disclosure under this Act would involve the unreasonable disclosure of personal information about any person (including a deceased person).

Note: Access must generally be given to a conditionally exempt document unless it would be contrary to the public interest (see section 11A).

The documents that are exempt under section 47F(1) contain the personal information of a third party. In my view, release of this information would be an unreasonable release of third party personal information and would be contrary to the public interest.

I have considered a number of factors in order to determine whether or not the release of the third parties’ personal information would be reasonable or not in the specific circumstances of the case. Factors considered when applying the unreasonableness test include:

- the extent to which the information is well known;
- the availability of the information from publicly available sources;
- that the documents contain third party personal information;

- whether the person to whom the information relates is known to be (or to have been) associated with the matters dealt with in the document;
- the nature of the information and whether disclosure would result in serious consequences;
- how the information was obtained; and
- the current relevance and age of the information.

In my view, when all circumstances are considered, the release of personal information would be unreasonable in the circumstances as it would constitute an unreasonable invasion of a third parties' privacy.

The FOI Act now provides that 'conditionally exempt' information must be released unless the decision maker reaches the view that release of the information would be 'contrary' to the public interest.

I am satisfied that the documents I have exempted under section 47F(1) contain personal information and the disclosure would be contrary to the public interest. When assessing the public interest test, I have considered:

Factors in favour of disclosure:

- promote the objects of the Act;
- inform debate on a matter of public importance;
- reveal the reason for a government decision;
- enhance the scrutiny of government decision making;
- the extent to which the information is well known;

Factors against disclosure:

- could reasonably be expected to prejudice the protection of an individual's right to privacy;

On balance, I am satisfied that release of the personal information exempt within the documents would be contrary to the public interest and is therefore exempt under section 47F(1) of the FOI Act. The factor against disclosure relating to the protection of an individual's right to privacy was given the most weight. The benefit to the public resulting from disclosure is outweighed by the benefit of withholding the information.
